ANZAC Dawn Service

On Saturday, 25th April, the Tarago ANZAC Dawn service was held. This was the largest gathering for the dawn service we have seen and testament to the commemoration of the 100 years anniversary. It was wonderful to see so many of our students singing the National Anthems of New Zealand & Australia, even though there were a few technical glitches (no music). The children did very well and all the staff in attendance were very proud of them. Congratulations. Photos from the service on page 2.

Excursion to Canberra Symphony Education Centre

Next Tuesday 5th May, the whole school will be going to the Canberra Symphony Education Centre. There is no cost for this excursion and will be a full day. Children are to bring lunch, recess and drink. The bus will leave school at 9am and return by 3.15pm. A permission is attached.

News from the Infants Room

Last week the Infants class artwork focused on Autumn leaves and produced traditional and non traditional coloured leaves, using their imagination to produce leaves with colours and textures we would not normally see. The technique used to make our blue, purple & pink leaves was real leaves painted then a roller to press the image onto paper. Mrs Katen.

News from the Primary Room

Inspired by the Dawn Service on Saturday the class have written letters to their future children, 50 years in the future to be precise.

"Dear Isaac,

Fifty years ago I was a student at Tarago PS. The year was 2015 and we commemorated the Centenary of Gallipoli, otherwise known as ANZAC day. At school we learnt about what happened 100 years earlier during WW1. ANZAC Day is important because we can remember about all the men that went to war and fought for us. And the nurses and the women that went to save our country. They left their family and many of them didn't come back to their family. Many people made friends and they saw them die but kept going and probably thinking they are going to die next."
